Select Poetry.

WAKE NICODEMUS!

Nicodemus, the slave, was of African birth,
And was bought for a bagful of gold;
He was reckoned as part of the salt of the earth,
But he died, years ago, very old.
'Twas his sad last requst, so we laid his away,
In the trunk of an old hollow tree;
Wake me up! was his charge, at the first break of day,
Wake me up for the Great Jubilee!

CHORUS.—
The Good Time Coming is almost here;
It was long, long, long on the way!
Now, run and tell Elijah to hurry up Pomp,
And meet us at the gum-tree down in the swamp,
To wake Nicodemus to day.

He was known as a prophet; at least was as wise,
For he told of the battles to come;
And we trembled with dread when he roll'd up his eyes,
And we heeded the shake of his thumb;
Though he clothed us with fear, yet the garments he wore,
Were in patches at elbow and knee;
And he still wears the suit, that he used to of yore,
As he sleeps in the old hollow tree.

CHORUS.—The Good Time Coming, &c.

Nicodemus was never the sport of the lash,
Though the bullet has oft cross'd his path;
There are none of his masters so brave or so rash
As to face such a man in his wrath;
Yet his great hear; with kindness was filled to the brim,
He obeyed who was born to command;
But he longed for the morning which then was so dim,
For the morning which now is at hand.

CHORUS.—The Good Time Coming, &c.

'Twas a long weary night, we were almost in fear
That the future was more than we knew;
'Twas a lon weary night; but the morning is near,
And the words of the prophet are true.
There are signs in the sky that the darkness is gone,
There are tokens in endless array;
While the storm which had seemingly banished the dawn,
Only hastens the advent of day.

CHORUS.—The Good Time Coming, &c

CHAPTER VIII.

General McClellan again in Command—The Enemy move into Maryland—Our March through Maryland—Fight at Crampton's Pass—Surrender of Harpers Ferry—Battle of Antietam—March to Williamsport—Camp at Bakersville—General Pratt takes Command of the Brigade.

During our campaign to Centreville, the Army of the Potomac had been joined to the Army of Virginia, under command of Maj. General Pope. On our return to Alexandria, General McClellan, who had been assigned, in the meantime, to the command of the defences of Washington, was again placed in command of the Army of the Potomac, which included the whole of our forces in Virginia, and was now being rapidly recruited by fresh men. About the 7th of September we commenced our march through Washington, towards the Upper Potomac. We moved very slowly, seemingly awaiting the developments of the enemy, who had occupied Frederick, Maryland, and were thought to be moving towards Pennsylvania. We passed through Rockville, Darnesville and Urbana, crossing the Monocacy near Buckeystown, without any fighting, thus far. Next day we passed through Jefferson, and on to Burketsville, where the road crosses South Mountain, at Crampton's Pass. We had met a few of their Cavalry at Sugar Loaf Mountain, and now encountered a stronger force, which seemed inclined to dispute our passage. This was Sunday, the 14th of September. After a sharp fight, in which we were not actively engaged, the rebels were driven from their position, and one gun, and a considerable number of prisoners captured. Next morning we crossed the ridge, into Pleasant Valley, and encamped. All the preceding day we had heard the heavy firing at South Mountain Pass, where the Ninth Corps effected their advance across the mountain; and the guns at Harper's Ferry. This morning we heard but little firing in any direction, the troops at Harper's Ferry having been surrendered about 10 A. M. In the afternoon we moved a few miles in the direction of Maryland Heights, without any apparent result. Why we were not moved to the relief of the garrison there, cannot be conjectured, unless our commanding officer was ignorant of the danger to the forces there. On the 16th we remained quietly in camp, in Pleasant Valley, where we first learned of the disaster at Harper's Ferry, and the success of our troops at South Mountain Pass.

On the morning of September 17th, we were aroused early by the sound of cannon, and were speedily marching to the battlefield of Antietam. We had a distance of eight miles to traverse, and moved as rapidly as possible. As we neared the field, the noise of the contest increased, and when we reached the remainder of the army, we found them hotly engaged. We were marched at the double-quick to the right wing of our lines, and pushed forward to the relief of the Penn'a Reserves, and Richardson's Division of the Second Corps, which had lost some ground, and were said to be out of ammunition. After our arrival on the line, the force of the coatest seemed removed more to our left, we only becoming engaged with the artillery, and occasional skirmishing. The rebels used their cannon freely, endeavoring to shell us out of the woods in which we were posted, and our guns replied with so good effect as, in several instances, completely to silence their guns.

After about three o'clock, P. M., the battle seemed gradually to slacken, and we were in possession of the field, or at least the greater portion of it. We remained in our position, lying on our arms during the night, and fully expecting the battle to be resumed next morning. On the next day, however, no movement was made, and no firing was heard anywhere on the lines. The opposing skirmishers agreed on a truce, and, meeting half-way between the lines, removed the wounded of their respective parties. Rumor said a general truce had been arranged for the purpose of burying the dead, and collecting the wounded, but this appears to have been a mistake. An unexpected silence existed all day, however, and both parties seemed to retain their positions, awaiting the movements of each other. On the night of the 18th it was evident that the rebels were in motion, but it was impossible to determine in what direction, until daylight revealed the fact that they had retreated across the Potomac during the night.—We moved down to the river at Sheperdstown, at once, but the rebels were all safe on the Virginia side. An attempt was made by a part of General Porter's force to cross the river, which was repulsed, and no further effort to pursue was attempted. Thus ended the battle of Antietam, a most important victory for us, as it ended the first attempt of the enemy to invade our soil; and, although the fruits of this victory were but scantily realized, and the magnitude of our success but indifferently understood, at the time when our knowledge of it would have been valuable, yet it is certainly destined to occupy an important page in the history of this stupendous struggle. Our losses in it were slight, as we were not closely engaged, and though our duty there was arduous and tiresome, it was less perilous than that of many other regiments. Our Colonel was in command of the third Brigade of the Division, and gained much praise for his able handling of this important command in the battle. They were upon one of the most stubbornly contested portions of the line, and lost heavily. During the progress of this battle, our beloved Brigade commander, General Hancock, was taken from us by his assignment to the command of Richardson's Division, that officer having been mortally wounded in the fight. Through all our past history, he had been growing in our respect, and love, and confidence, and his brilliant soldierly qualities made it impossible that he should long confine his talents for command, and capacity for usefulness, to the narrow limits of a single Brigade. While we rejoiced in his promotion, that valued boon to the true soldier, we could not but regret his separation from us.

From our camp near Shepherdstown, we moved, by night, back across the battlefield, and by way of St. James College, to Williamsport. After remaining here two days, we marched to Bakersville, where we went into camp once more.—Here Brig Gen'l Pratt assumed command of the Brigade which, at this time, was the first Brigade of Smith's Division, Franklin's, or more properly the Sixth Corps. There was little in our life at Bakersville worth recording, except that having left our luggage behind at Alexandria, and Washington, we suffered for want of shelter, as the nights grew colder. Many of our Pennsylvania friends visited our camps, and the rich country around us furnished us with many luxuries, not generally enjoyed in the experiences of a soldier.

CHAPTER IX.

Stuart's Raid on Chambersburg—March to Pennsylvania Line—Camp at Hagerstown—March to White Plains—General McClellan's Removal—March to Acquia Creek—Camp at White Oak Church—Battle of Fredericksburg—Return to Camp.

As we lay in camp at Bakersville, the rebels under Stuart, crossing the Potomac on our right, marched rapidly to Chambersburg, Pa., plundering the towns and country of such things as would supply them, or could be carried off with them. This movement speedily created a commotion in our camp, and all were soon under way for the Pennsylvania border. Our regiment, passing through Hagerstown, marched up the National Turnpike to Cunningham's Cross Roads, and there, for the first time, performed picket duty on the soil of Pennsylvania. We were over late, however, for Stuart and his horsemen had gone, and reached the Virginia shore in safety with their plunder. This was the second time this bold Cavalryman had ridden entirely around our army, having performed the same feat when we were investing Richmond. After a very brief stay near the Pennsylvania line, we marched to Hagerstown, and encamped in a grove near the railrord, ab't two miles north of the town. We had not yet heard from our baggage, and as the nights grew cool, we suffered for want of sufficient shelter. There was an unaccountable delay, too, in procuring supplies, our men being in want of all kinds of clothing. This was urged by General McClellan as a reason for not moving, while the Quartermaster General averred that it was the fault of his own officers, as their requisitions had all been filled as fast as forwarded. Whoever may have been in fault, is difficult to tell, but we are certain that the baggage and supplies were not forthcoming, and that we did not move. While we remained in camp at Hagerstown, the citizens of the surrounding country treated us with great kindness, and supplies of all kinds of provisions were amply, and cheaply procured. We could almost renew the scenes and associations of our former peaceful life, as there were churches, and singing-schools, country schoolhouses and country Stores, much after the pattern of those familiar to us ere we learned war. We remained at Hagerstown until October 27th, when again we were ordered to be ready to move. Supplies and baggage had arrived, and rested and recruited by this pleasant October camp, we moved off once more for Virginia. We halted one night at Boonesboro, near the place where the National turnpike crosses South Mountain, and where the Ninth Corps had their engagement on the 14th of September. Here we were mustered for pay on the 31st of October, as the custom is.

We continued our march in the direction of Frederick city, as far as Middletown, but moved thence southward to the Potomac river, at Berlin, where we crossed again into Virginia. We moved on by steady, but leisurly marches, finding no enemy in force, nor meeting with any remarkable incidents. The country afforded some supplies, being naturally productive, and, for a considerable time, undisturbed. We reached New Baltimore, a little village near Warrenton, when the news of a change of commanding officers first reached us. Maj Gen'l McClellan was relieved, and Maj. Gen'l Burnside ordered to succeed him. This event, although not wholly unexpected, created great discussion throughout the country, and many fears were expressed of its unfavorable effect on the army.—Beyond a few circles of officers, however, it had no perceptible effect in the army, and was not long, nor very earnestly discussed. As soon as General Burnside assumed command, we moved forward, but more nearly in the direction of Fredericksburg. We halted at Aquia Church, a very venerable structure, not far from Stafford Court House, and remained there about a week. We then resumed our march, passing by Stafford Court House to Potomac Creek, which we crossed near the railroad bridge. During the night we encamped near Potomac creek bridge; a snow fell, and the mud and snow made our marching next day exceedingly laborious. As we made our way along, however, the air began to grow colder, and, as evening approached, quite chilly. We marched to White Oak Church, and bivouaced in a thick woods, in the snow, building fires, for no train with tents or blankets could reach us that night. The mud was everywhere a most insuperable obstacle to progress. During the night the cold became intense, and when morning came, the roads, so late mortar and muddy swamp, were all solid as rock.—Everything was frozen as hard as though a week of winter had been experienced. Rations were short, and, together with the absence of tents, and the extreme cold, conspired to render the situation anything but satisfactory, though by no means desperate. The solid earth helped the trains, however, and soon after their arrival, we had tents pitched in a fine oak grove, the snow cleared out of them, fires built, and the newly arrived rations in process of preparation for effective service. The mud of the march, the cold of the previous bivouac, and the hunger of the day, were alike forgotten over our comfortable suppers, sparkling campfires, and rude but welcome couches. Nothing is real in the past but pleasure, for past toils are present pleasures, and hardships are such only while they last. So we slept soundly, and were refreshed, for we had solid and substantial beds, good appetites, wholesome rations, and clear consciences. We commenced next morning to improve our camp and quarters, and carried on this work each succeeding day. The weather grew warm again, and we were all getting comfortably fixed up when, on the 10th of Dec., we received orders to prepare to move at a moments notice. A move now meant a fight, for the enemy were in force just across the Rappahannock. Accordingly, we mustered our courage, cooked our rations, and packed our knapsacks in readiness for the march.

We were not kept long in waiting, for the army was all in motion in a short time, and Fredericksburg seemed to be the objective point. We arrived at the river, and encamped, on the night of the 11th of December, in the woods near the place, called afterwards, Franklin's crossing. Gen'l Franklin had, at this time, been assigned to the command of the Left Grand Division of the Army, consisting of the First and Sixth corps. On the twelfth we moved down to the river bank, and towards evening effected a crossing, and a lodgment on the opposite side. Two pontoons were laid, and a tolerably large force crossed to occupy the southern bank of the river. Early in the morning the army commenced moving across the river, and forming lines for the expected attack. The plains east of Fredericksburg are open, level and extensive, and afforded the left Grand Division a most magnificent field for operations. A heavy fog enveloped everything, concealing both parties effectually, and lasting until about 10 o'clock, A M. When it lifted, there was disclosed one of the most magnificent and inspiring pageants that it ever was given mortal eyes to look upon. The entire left Grand Division, full twenty thousand men, Infantry, Artillery and Cavalry, were drawn up in columns of attack, by companies, batteries and squadrons.—The whole array was in full view from all parts of the field, and must have been witnessed by our foes. In this order, with floating colors, and confident anticipations, we moved across the wide plain to the Richmond road, where encountering their skirmishers, and anxiously awaited the further developments of events. All fully expected a most desperate struggle, and everywhere the cannonade betokened that the time for decisive action had arrived. Suddenly the roll of musketry on the right came, mingled with cheers, and then on the left our infantry opened, and charging across the fields, disappeared in the woods near the ridge forming the enemy's position. We stood waiting the struggle of our comrades on the left, expecting every moment to hear the order to go forward to their support, and listening anxiously to the fire on the right, to endeavor to detect, by its sound, whether our forces there were advancing. Our artillery and skirmishers were engaging the rebels, but we remained in our position, seeing our troops on the left repulsed, and driven back to our lines, and taking no effective part in the action. It was now about three P. M., and the firing began to slacken in both directions, the skirmishers and artillery excepted, who still spitefully kept up the fighting at long range. Nothing more seemed to be attempted this day.

We slept but little, of course, lying on our arms, and expecting an attack at daylight. Next day was Sunday, and, although the 14th of December, was warm and pleasant. But little occurred to attract attention this day, everything remaining in statu quo. We lay in the road with our arms stacked, and prepared for a movement at any moment, but beyond some tolerably close shelling, we were not disturbed. The night that followed was distinguished by a grand display of the phenomenon of the Aurora Borealis. A display exceeding in grandeur any we had ever witnessed. The whole firmament, from zenith to horizon, was a vast panorama of light, varying in colors and intensity. The air was pleasantly warm, and altogether the scene afforded a spectacle seldom twice witnessed in a lifetime. On Monday, some other troops relieved us from duty on the front line, and we marched back near to the Pontoon bridge. Here, close by us, we found our comrades of the Forty-fifth Penn'a Vols., whom we had not seen after our departure from Harrisburg, when we first went to war. They had been with the Army of the Potomac for a considerable time, but had never before been thrown into the same neighborhood with us. We passed most of this day in renewing old acquaintances, and recounting our various experiences, these remaining, but little indication of a renewal of the battle. As night approached, the order came to fall back quietly, and as soon as darkness came on, we were rapidly crossing the river. The Forty-ninth were detailed to guard and look after the pontoon bridges, and so did not get across till near morning. Then we marched back to our former camping place in the edge of the woods, where we lay down to sleep a little while before daylight. When morning came it was raining, and the contrast between our situation, our spirits, hopes and anticipations, afforded by the different circumstances under which we had occupied this camp, furnished a good index to the condition of our cause at this dark season of the war's history. We little expected a defeat when we moved across the Rappahannock, After we were defeated, we would not have been willing to believe, that we should ever come to call the battle of December 13, 1862, the First Fredericksburg, and that the second should be like unto the first, but this was not our last disaster yet, and we had still to learn much by dear-bought experience. We lost this battle, as we had that at Bull Run, by reason of the jealousies and want of co operation of our General officers.

After a day or two of rest, we marched leisurely back to our camps near White Oak Church, and began to fix our quarters with a view to winter. The army had lost much of its confidence in the commanding officer, and many changes took place in the different corps. The Army of the Potomac was wanting greatly, better discipline, and a higher degree of faith in our leaders, our cause, and our ultimate success.

EACH ant in an ant hill knows his companions. Mr. Darvin several times carried ants from one hill to another, inhabited apparently by tens of thousands of ants, but the strangers were invariably detected and killed. Thinking there might be a family odor by which they recognized, he put some ants from a very large nest into a bottle strongly perfumed with asafœtida, and again restored them after twenty-four hours. At first they were threatened by their companions, but soon recognized and allowed to pass.

BELLEFONTE, PA.

Wednesday Morning, April 21, '69.

The South Coming Right.

We received a letter last week from Memphis, Tenn., written April 11th 1869. It is from a noble son of the EMERALD ISLE whose acquaintance we made during our stay in Tennessee last year. We found him to be not only a specimen of the true Irish gentleman, but a truly loyal and enlightened American citizen. To us, he was more like a brother than a friend, and never while memory endures, will we forget the deep interest he manifested in our welfare and the many pleasant hours we spent with him and his interesting family.

Oh! that the country was full of just such men and fenians as he.

After giving us some news of an individual and congratulatory character, he says:

"I see by the report of the last Fennian Congress held in Philadelphia, that there is a "Circle" in your town, and that it was represented in the Philadelphia Congress. I expected to be there myself, but through some unvoidable circumstances was not able to attend. You can tell the FENNIANS of your town, if you know any of them, to be of good cheer. We men of the South will not be behind in the march, and while we work and fight for our own liberties and the emancipation of our beloved IRELAND, we are are also willing to concede to others what we claim for ourselves.

The Republican party is again split into factions in Memphis. Judge Hunter on one side, and ED. SHAW on the other; but I think Hunter will win. The Irish vote will go for Hunter, no matter what his politics may be, that is, all that can appreciate honesty and fair dealing."

"That political trickster, Andy Johnson, will be here on the 14th inst. A committee left here to meet him at Nashville to-day. You must content yourself for the present. I will let you know all about the show in Memphis, when the Comedian fulfills his engagement. I have not seen the Programme yet; but I think it will contain that old farce the "Devil among the tailors" or perhaps that great American drama "The Drunkard."

We will wait, impatiently, for a letter containing the full particulars of Andy's performance in Memphis. And in the meantime we avail ourselves of this opportunity, to say to the FENIANS of Bellefonte as well as to the Brotherhood both North and South, that all your hopes must prove abortive, unless you can secure them through the great Republican party of America. The course pursued by A. Johnson while President, backed by the sham Democratic party, and their conduct to the FENIANS since their earliest organization, should afford you sufficient proof of the hypocrisy and insincerity of the leaders and politicians of that disloyal and free-trade—English-loving party.

We sympathise with the Fenians. We wish them success. They have a great work to do. They have a powerful opposition to overcome. They have to encounter all the force, power and strategy of the English nation, while at home they meet with opposition both from the Catholic and Protestant churches. Nerve your arms, strengthen your hearts, and hope in God, ye noble men, engaged as you are, in the great work of emancipating Ireland, from English mis-rule, slavery and chains, and the amelioration, and enlightenment of your race in America.

FREE TRADE.—A free trade paper inadvertently makes the following strong, although unintended, argument for protection: "It seems that the exodus of French Canadians to this country is steadily increasing of late, and that at no similar period within the last twelve years has there been such a large and continuous emigration of agriculturists. A Montreal paper says that the number now leaving weekly by way of that city is over five hundred, and that the great majority are young men. The French Canadians are an industrious and honest people, and in a very short time make excellent American citizens. They are rather backward in some respects, owing to the old depressive laws of the Province and its priestly domination; but it only needs a brief residence in this country to put them alongside of any other class of the population in enterprise and intelligence."

The farmers of Canada enjoy comparative free trade and cheap British fabrics. Yet they prefer the nearer market and better prices on our side of the line. The flow of population hitherward has generally been strongest when our tariff was highest. This is a significant and undeniable fact.

IT is stated that the President is becoming so disgusted at the efforts to blacken the characters of applicants for office by rivals for the same positions, that hereafter he will consider these aspersions as recommendations, on the ground that Hate like Death, "loves a shining mark."

EX GOVERNOR CURTIN was appointed by President Grant and confirmed by the U. S. Senate, as Minister to Russia. This will be good news to his friends in this county and State.

Organize.

Republicans—friends of freedom and equal-rights in Centre county, what are you doing? Have you determined to make one more effort to redeem Centre county from the misrule of the sham Democracy? Are you working in good earnest to hurl from power the "Court House ring," composed of men the most unscrupulous, who have so long abused your patience, and who, in order to enrich themselves, have increased your county taxes from 2½ to 7½ mills on the dollar? Remember that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." If you would redeem Centre county—if you would hurl from power and place the men who have so long misrepresented the people—who stealthily wormed themselves into office while the true men of the county were in the army fighting to save the life of the nation, you must be like the good sentinel, found at your post, ready to do, or to die, rather than let the enemy surprise you, or strike down the principles and men you espouse and advocate. Your cause is just. It is the cause of equal rights to all—the cause of God and humanity. Acquit yourselves like men. Organize without delay, and prepare for the coming contest. Hundreds of good, honest men, who have heretofore acted and voted with the sham Democracy, are beginning to see the hollowness and hypocrisy of that organization. They desire to join the victorious hosts of the Republican party. They see and feel that it was the Republican party that saved the nation. They realize that the Democratic party, by its opposition to the war, by its sympathy with the rebels all through the bloody conflict, has disgraced itself, and lost, forever, the confidence of the people. They do not wish this disgrace to follow them and their children. Hence, they desire now to leave that organization, lead on, as it is, by dishonest and disloyal men. Republicans of Centre, extend to these men the right hand of fellowship. Open wide your doors, and bid them welcome. Organize without delay, and remember, if you do not triumph in Centre county, the fault is yours, and you must bare the blame.

The Work of Restoration.

The appeal of President Grant, says the North American, has met with a promp and gratifying response by the passage by Congress of the bill reported by the House Reconstruction Committee to provide for the submission to a popular vote in Virginia, Mississippi and Texas of the constitution framed by the reconstruction conventions of those States. Before the message of the President was sent in it seemed utterly impossible to get either branch of Congress to act on this subject of reconstruction. A majority of the Republicans favored it steadily, but the recusant minority united with the Democrats to postpone action. President Grant's message was sustained by the leading organs of Republican sentiment with singular unanimity. Indeed it advocated a policy which many of them, like ourselves, had been earnestly urging upon Congress.

We are pleased to find that Congress in the act just passed, has required the three unreconstructed States named above to ratify the 15th amendment to the national constitution as a condition of readmission. These three States lost their powers and prerogatives as States of this Union by their own acts, and after waging a long, desperate and bloody war against the republic, resulting in their conquest and submission, there is no harshness or injustice in our stipulating that before coming back into Congress, where they were so long the causes of infinite trouble, they shall accept the full citizenship of all Americans, without regard to race or complection. Their attempts, subsequent to the war, to establish an abominable system of caste, depriving the freedmen of all civil and political rights, were sufficient to show how unsafe it would be to trust these States again with power to oppress any portion of their own people or ours.

In the course of the debate in the Senate on Mr. Morton's amendment, it was vehemently urged that it wl'd be a breach of faith to add a new condition after having previously agreed upon a different arrangement. We can see no breach of faith about it. Mississippi rejected the offer by a popular vote, and has acted in such a manner as to deserve no other term than such as we now offer. The people of Texas have annoyed and embarrased the authorities in the work of reconstruction to such an extent as to have rendered it imprudent to take a vote in the State. But the Presidential election is over, and the rebels have seen the utter folly of building any hopes upon Democratic schemes, and there is really a chance to make reconstruction permanently successful.

The Carolinas, Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, Arkansas and Louisiana are working along very well under the system, and becoming habituated to the reconstructed basis of society, and there is no good reason why the other States should not be also. There has really been very little disorder in Virginia since the close of the war, and the people deserve praise for having accepted peace in a far better temper, after their brave struggle, than some of the other southern States whose people did less fighting in the war.

We look forward to the restoration of Virginia as certain to bring back into our councils the State which is the natural leader of the south, and has been so from the date of our sectional difficulties. The influence of the Virginia Representatives upon the rest of the South cannot be otherwise than wholesome, and, therefore, if we want peace, we must avail ourselves of that influence. We are not afraid of a reorganization of the south in Congress as a formidable political element. On the contrary, in the absence of slavery and caste, we think such an organization would restore a wholesome sectional balance, and give us Pennsylvanians some sort of a chance of defending our own interests, threatened as they constantly are by adverse elements.

BELLEFONTE LUTHERAN CHURCH FESTIVAL.—Refreshments will be served by the ladies of the Lutheran Congregation in the room formerly the office of THE CENTRAL PRESS, on Monday and Tuesday evenings next. Dinner on Tuesday from 12 to 2½ o'clock. A splendid steel plate engraving, 25 by 38 inches inside of a rich, massive frame, entitled "The American Authors," will be voted for.

We hope a generous patronage will be extended the ladies in this enterprize, more especially as the proceeds are to be devoted to the benefit of their church recently purchased, and it being the first enterprise of this description ever presented to the public on the part of the Lutheran Congregation of Bellefonte.

WE call the attention of our readers to the communication from Pine Grove Mills, advocating the re-nomination of Gov. Geary. Who will be the next to speak? This is the proper time to discuss the merits of candidates. We have great faith in the people, and if the delegates to the State Convention are properly instructed, and faithfully carry out those instructions, we have no fears for the result. They will give us the very best man, and then with harmony in our ranks, we will achieve a triumph in October next, in the old Keystone, that will eclipse all our former glorious victories.

A MILITARY order, issued by General Sherman, directs that commanding officers of troops occupying the regular forts built by the Engineer department, shall not permit photographic or other views of the same to be taken without permission of the War Department. Are there foreign spies about, or what is the nature of the danger?

THE Paris Presse, commenting on the rejection of the Alabama claims treaty by the United States Senate, takes occasion to express the opinion that such action will tend to prejudice Europe against the American Government.

Letter from Montana.

EDITORS REPUBLICAN:—A few days ago received the first copy of the REPUBLICAN which, though new, yet seemed as an old friend, telling much of home, and in gratitude for the gift of it, your humble correspondent will make an effort to interest its patrons with a few truthful deliniations of Rocky Mountain life and scenery; and, without more of a prelude, will state that, in the summer of 1866, in company with other "rolling stones that gather no moss," we left the terminus of civilization, a three-day's journey in Kansas, and commenced our long pilgrimage toward Montana, hopeful soon to delve in the ravines and in the mountain sides, for a portion of the millions of gold, which lies buried beneath her soil, but perchance our golden dreams to end in a nameless grave, among the thousands who slumber here and there on the great plains.

To give a description of the plains would simply be to "re-hash" the production of some abler writer; therefore, will only say to your readers that no description can convey to them a full conception of their vastness, for, indeed so many thousands of miles in length and breadth are they, that distance makes them a monotonous sameness, aching to the eyes, the only relief, a sight now and then of buffalo, the coy and the swift-footed antelope.

With the tedious mode of traveling by wagon train, it was over a week from the time we first saw the Rocky Mountains until our arrival at their base. To see them from afar off on the plains, they present the grandest sight, I venture to say, that mortal eyes can view. The long waste of yellow plain blends in lurid hue with the atmosphere, completely concealing the foot of the mountain, leaving but their huge snow-capped tops visible above the clouds, which, from so great a distance, seem as mighty pyramids, casting into utter insignificance the piles of stone and lime, masoned by man 'mid the shifting sands of Egypt, for they will sink anon, only to be known in history, while these will stand, in sublime grandeur, throughout the endless ages of time.

Leaving the stage-route at Bitter creek valley, we depart from all the habitations of man, save, now and then, the crossing of some filthy abode hovel the shelter of a renegade Frenchman, with his three or four squaw wives and whole troops of monkey-looking little half-breeds, all of whom 'tis hard to tell how he supports, unless through his "Red Brothers," by the blood-letting of emigrants. Of the great number who have fallen by the Indian's arrow and tomahawk, nine-tenths, in truth, could be imputed to these so-called "frontiersmen" who cohabit with the Indian, buy his squaw daughters, plunder and paltries in return, smuggling him rum, powder and bullets; spying out information as to the strength and wealth of a train, so that his wily ally may, fifty or a hundred miles off, hunt down their common prey. So long as our Government permits these people to scatter out among the Indian tribes, so long will our "irrepressible conflict" out here continue. Contrary to these assertions there are many here who, from prejudice, give a different phase to our present Indian troubles, and but a few years ago applauded the unwanton butchery of peaceable Bannacks by lawless men, in the midst of a populous mining town, and yet before twelve months had passed were compelled to hang these same men for crimes so black that the rehearsal of them would livid even the dusky cheek of our aboriginal neighbor, bad as he is.

Thirty-seven miles above the mouth of the Republican river, we arrived at a watering place simultaneous with a squaw camp of Sioux, numbering forty lodges, who were moving back for safety—their warriors being then engaged with the Cheyennes for trespassing on their hunting grounds. Straggling out, the line of ponies extended over a mile, each being burdened with squaws and papooses, and slung to either side of them the waikyup poles, whose clattering noise seemed to time with the even trot of their carriers. The van and rear were led and brought up by the Sachems of the tribe—the old men who have lost their youthful vigor, and are left with nought to do but squat beside the wigwam fire and "dream their glories o'er."

After a week of weary travel thro' Bitter creek valley—"the Valley of Death"—where the alkali infects the water and oozes up the ground, whitening the surface like little patches of snow, giving tortuous death to man and brute—we arrived at the foot of Snake River mountain, and, leaving the train, wound our way up the precipitate and labyrinthean pass until we reached the summit, and stood, for the first time, upon Rocky Mountain. Here was a grandly imposing scene—far behind us lay the mighty plains, spread from right to left, and front, farther than the eye could reach, until imagination seemed to have them kiss the clouds and sky. Far down before us lay the winding sluggish "Snake River," in a broad and fertile valley; and near the Great Lake and Falls of Shoshone nestling at the foot of a mountain whose frowning old grey rocks towered, in a cresent shape, above it a thousand feet or more. As we gazed upon this wild seen we wondered how many cycles time had run before that placid lake had been gazed upon by a paleface, when none but they, as wild in nature, as it is in scene, had been reflected upon its waters—the Indian, buffalo and antelope upon the grass-carpeted brink below, and the eagle soaring to his eyrie in the rocks above—when these mighty Falls, rivaling the Niagara, had sent their thundering echoes through valley, chasms, and over mountain, to strike the rocks and cliffs and echo back to Falls and Lake again.

After days in hewing our way thro' walls of snow on the mountain ranges, and fording rapid rivers, we passed across the boundaries of Montana, down the last canyon, and found home and rest in the beautiful Passamari Valley. Of this valley there is a tradition among the Bannacks, Ponderays and other Indian tribes, that, over a century ago, the snow fell to such a depth that the tallest trees were almost hidden; all living creatures among the mountains, on the highlands and in the valley perishing from hunger and cold; and upon the return of their ancestral tribes in the spring, they found the air ladened with a sickening stench, the river gorged with floating carcasses and its waters literally turned to a thick corruption; hence the name Passamari or "Stinking Water." This legend, until the spring of '68, we supposed to be nothing more than imaginary on the part of the Indians, when, under the guidance of a Bannack hunter, we visited an extensive park, through which three deep gullies had recently been cut by the bursting of storm clouds on the mountain above, and in them, from two to three feet in thickness, lay immense layers of bones, at a depth of 15 to 20 feet; in many places, imbedded in a stratta of solidified white clay, of the lightness of carbonate magnesia, and supposed, by some Geologists, to have been created of these bones thro' the agency of oxygenic minerals. In this great hectacomb are to be found bones of every specie of animal common to the Rocky Mountains, and perhaps, too, of some classes now extinct.

On the western side of Passamari Valley, towers up, in lone majesty, the Ruby Mountain, separated from the main ranges by level table lands, and deriving its name from a strange and beautiful display of atmospheric colors that play around it; ever blending and changing—hue chasing hue from side to side and top to bottom—in fancy, seeming, at times, a gossimer veil, covering the dark green forests in gold and silver and rainbow tints. The only water known to issue from this mountain is a large hot spring which comes up in a large volume, from a great depth, and from its temperature (nearly 200° F.) and the towering cliffs of red gossan rocks above, many are of the belief that it was the upheaval of a volcano, and is now a mighty cavern, perhaps containing unbounded wealth and charming grottoes, in vastness far beyond the conception of our imagination.

For the REPUBLICAN,

PINE GROVE MILLS, PA.
April 16th 1869.

EDITORS "BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN."

You published in your last issue an able communication from Benner setting forth the propriety of our present Auditor General, John F. Hartranft, receiving the Republican nomination for Governor. Your sensible article urging the discussion of the merits of candidates in order that the convention may be induced to select the best one meets our approval, and we gladly avail ourselves of your offer of space in your columns for this purpose, to set before your readers our views with the reasons that led us to them.

Fully agreeing with Benner as to the efficiency, integrity, and prudence of Gen. Hartranft, we yet think that Governor Geary should be renominated. The nomination of the former we think is dictated, neither by prudence nor principles, but in renominating the latter we think the Republican party would act both wisely and well.

While we accord to General Hartranft, the meed that is due to a wise officer, true patriot, and brave soldier, it must be acknowledged that his military career was less brilliant than that of Gen. Geary, and that his services were less valuable to the State and to the country at large. Not to specify the varied brilliant exploits and valuable services of Gen. Geary, which are so well known as to need no mention, it is fit that we should allude to his part in the great battle of Gettysburg, which alone entitles him to the enduring gratitude of all Pennsylvania's sons. His brilliant strategy and heroic valor secured for the Union force the possession of Roundtop, the great stronghold of the batde field. Had not Gen. Geary taken possession of this hill, and had it fallen into the hands of the rebels, as would have been the case had it not been for the brave fighting of his division, and the cool foresight of its intrepid commander, the result of the battle would doubtless have been adverse to the Union army, and then—who shall tell what would have followed? We will never be able to estimate the value of General Geary's services on that occasion.

Governor Geary's private character, his advocacy of Temperance, his christian zeal, and his sterling integrity commend him to the favor of all the good and true. Private worth, and sterling integrity are qualifications that have been too much overlooked in the nominations of our candidates. But moral men are daily awaking to a sense of their duty in this matter, and in October next they will speak out in thunder tones their approval of Governor Geary's record in this respect.

Such has been the wisdom, honesty, economy, and success of Governor Geary's administration that it deserves the recognition of a renomination. Gen. Hartranft's integrity and fidelity received such a recognition at the hands of his party, and for his faithfulness to duty. Gov. Geary deserves a similar recognition. We are proud of Gen. Hartranft's services, both in his military and in his civil capacity. His prudence and integrity have been noted by our people, and when the proper time shall come we will all join heartily in saying to him "Faithful public servant, come up higher."

The question of availibility is not one of grave importance now, as, with any good man the Republican party is sure to carry the State by a large majority. Your correspondent fears that Governor Geary "cannot unite the various factions that will arise in parties." Doubtless there are factions each of which would prefer some man who would become a pliant tool in their hands, but to these persons we think Gen. Hartranft would be little if any more acceptable. Weighed in the balance and not found wanting, tried and proved faithful and true, the people will insist on Gov. Geary's nomination. We know of no man in our State whose personal popularity with the masses, is so great a is our noble and patriotic Governor. Let him be placed in nomination and in October we will sweep the Keystone State like a whirlwind.

Yours truly,

PHILO PATRIAE.

TOWN LOTS FOR SALE, HAVING THE FOLLOWING MERITS.—They are near the Court House.
They are not on a hill.
They are located on one of the principal streets of the Borough.
They are very low in price.
They will be sold on a reasonable credit.
Half the marketing entering Bellefonte passes the front of these lots, and may be had, which is an important consideration; for, who has not travelled the rounds of the stores in search of butter, &c., and returned home disappointed?
For a residence and boarding house for any who do not wish to loose time going to or returning from meals, these lots are very desirable. Apply to JNO. D. WINGATE.

MILESBURG PLANING MILL.

MACKEY & COMPANY,

having leased the above named Planing Mill, and added largely to its facilities for turning out first class work, are now prepared to furnish

FLOORING, DOORS, BLINDS, SASH, SHUTTRS, BRACKETS, SCROLL WORK, and manufactured lumber of EVERY DESCRIPTION at the LOWEST CASH PRICES.

All manner of work such as Scroll Sawing, Moulding, Brackets, &c., &c., made after any desired pattern,

ON THE SHORTEST NOTICE.

This company is composed of practicable mechanics, and Samuel Adams, one of the Co., has been foreman of the Bellefonte Planing Mill since its commencement.

Connected with the mill, and in operation at all times, is one of the latest improved

COKE DRYING KILNS;

which leaves the lumber in a perfectly healthy state, assists in preserving it, and in fact adds to its lasting qualities, while other methods of drying deteriorate, and renders it more liable

TO DECAY AND WASTE.

Lumber dried in a Coke klin, is dried perfectly, and when worked and put up, will not

SHRIVEL AND SHRINK,

thus giving buildings the appearance of having been erected out of Green Material.

We know that our facilities give us every advantage over other

PLANING MILLS IN THIS SECTION

and we feel perfectly free in saying, that all our

WORK WILL BE GUARANTEED, to be of

A SUPERIOR QUALITY.

We will furnish anything in our line from a door panel, to a

WHOLE HOUSE,

and at such prices, as cannot but prove to be an inducement to

THOSE DESIRING TO BUILD.

All orders promptly filled and a fair share of public patronage, respectfully solicited.

BELLEFONTE, PA.

Wednesday Morning, April 21, '69.

THE Drug Store of F. P. Green was removed, on April 1st, 1869, from Brockerhoff's row, to the new Hotel of Bush & McLain, over the creek.

FARM FOR SALE.—Bond Valentine offers his splendid farm, of 195 acres, with in one and a half miles of Bellefonte, for sale. For full particulars, inquire of Mr. Valentine, or at the office of the REPUBLICAN.

DESIRABLE TOWN LOTS FOR SALE.—Persons wishing to build houses which can be sold again at a good round profit, will do well to purchase from Dr. Wingate, as the lots offered for sale by him have many points of merit not possessed by lots elsewhere. See advertisement "town lots for sale."

DENTISTRY.—In the advertising columns of the REPUBLICAN will be seen the professional card of S. Belford, D. D. S. The office and residence of Dr. Belford is on Howard street, in the house formerly occupied by Samuel Harris, dec'd. Dr. B. is a graduate of the Baltimore College of Dentistry, and has added to his knowledge many years of practice and experience. For further particulars, see card.

MILLINERY.—We are pleased to learn that Miss. Fannie Lembkey, of Philadelphia, has rented the corner room in the Bush House, fronting on High street and Spring creek, where she intends to open on the 26th day of April, a large and splendid assortment of millinery and fancy goods. Miss. Lembkey is an adept in the millinery and mantua making business, and we know that the people of Bellefonte and vicinity will find it to their interest to call and examine her stock before purchasing elsewhere. All work made in accordance with the latest style, and at most reasonable rates.

CURTIN HOUSE.—This is the name of the excellent hotel kept by Capt. Martin Dolan, in Central city. The house is entirely new, having been built about one year ago. It is furnished in the best of style, and it may be most emphatically said of Capt. Dolan, that "he knows how to keep a hotel." Strangers and travelers will find the "Curtin House" all its friends claim for it, while persons wishing to leave the city during the hot summer months for pleasure, or to hunt and fish, cannot do better than to make their headquarters—their home for the time being—with Capt. Dolan, Central City, Pa.

DEEDS, BONDS, &c.—In another column of the REPUBLICAN will be seen the professional card of Wm. J. Kealsh, Esq.—Mr. Kealsh is not only a safe counsellor, but he is one of the best pensmen in this country. Persons having deeds, mortgages, bonds, articles of agreement, &c., to write, would do well to entrust their business to Mr. Kealsh. Such papers should always be written in the best style, in a plain and legible hand, and, at the same time, be carefully worded, and in strict accordance with the law, all of which Mr. Kealsh is abundantly qualified to perform. It affords us pleasure to recommend him to our readers.

HARSHLER'S SALOON.—This is the name of a saloon kept by Jacob Hershler, just in the rear of the REPUBLICAN office, on Logan street. Mr. Hershler has occupied this property, and kept an eating house or restaurant, for about one year, during all of which time, we believe, there has been no disturbance, nor arrests made by the police. It is said to be a saloon kept in strict accordance with the law. For this, of course, we cannot vouch, as we have never been there to see; but there is one thing of which we are certain, to wit: That Jake is a very clever man; and if any person can keep a saloon in strict conformity to the law, Mr. Hershler is one of the men.

SAVE MONEY.—Readers of the REPUBLICAN, we have a word of advice for you; heed it if you please, if not, not. It is simply this: Before you buy your spring and summer goods—new suits of cloths for yourselves and boys—new dresses for your wives and daughters—consult the advertising columns of the REPUBLICAN. Look over all the names of business men. If you find their names and goods advertised in our columns, you can take it for granted that they are good and enterprising men, and that you will do well by dealing with any of them; but if you do not find their names and advertisement in the REPUBLICAN, you had better—well!—we just remember the old adage, that "it is better to think twice before we speak once." This is a good rule; but we were going to say—and we have thought twice—that if you want good bargains, and fair dealing, go to the men who advertise in the REPUBLICAN. They are the best men in town.

SOLD.—One of the neat houses erected on Linn street, last fall and winter, was built by Jno. Cook, of dry goods notoriety. The house is well built, and contains, we are informed, all the modern improvements. Before it was completed, however, Mr. Ardell purchased it, and, having also purchased the adjoining lot, intends to make it one of the most beautiful houses in town.

This is enterprise. We like to see it. Mr. Cook, having sold this house, will now be compelled to erect another. In this way our town will soon increase to magnificent proportions. Persons owning lots, should not ask exhorbitant prices, and thus cripple enterprise. If you will not, or cannot build yourselves, sell the lots at reasonable rates to those who will, and thus make yourselves of some use in your day and generation. Be this as it may, we ask you not to cripple the energies of our enterprising citizens, or stand in the way of progress. If you will not do anything yourselves, get out of the way, and let others roll on the ball.

Mr. Cook has received a large stock spring and summer goods, at the old stand, on Allegheny street, where it affords him great pleasure to wait on customers. Prices to suit the times.

A PROFUSE and many times excessively offensive discharge form the nose, with "stoppings up" of the nose at times impairment of the sense of smell and taste, watering or weak eyes, impaired hearing, irregular appetite, occasional nausea, pressure and pain over the eyes, and at times in the back of the head, occasional chilly sensations, cold feet, and a feeling of lasitude and debility are symptoms which are common to catarrh, yet all of them are not present in every case. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures catarrh in the worst forms and stages. It is pleasant to use, and contains no poisonous or caustic drugs.

Sent by mail on receipt of sixty cents. Address R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

For sale by most Druggists everywhere.

A NEW INVENTION.—We have now in the office of the REPUBLICAN the model of a self coupling invention for railroad cars. We know so little about cars, and railroading generally, that we feel a hesitancy in writing upon this subject; but we do know that there are, by far, too many travelers and employees killed, aye, murdered outright, upon these roads, through the carelessess and neglect of companies to avail themselves of labor-saving and life preserving inventions.—We believe that in a majority of cases where injuries and deaths occur, it is through the desire of the company to make money, or rather through their penuriousness in running old cars, or depending upon old breaks or couplings that should have been discarded, or set aside, months before the accident occurred.

The invention of Matthew Adams, Esq., of which we now speak, is certainly worthy the attention of all railroad companies, and scientific men generally. It couples itself, and cannot uncouple, except in case of a smash up, or where one or more cars would run off the track, then it would invariably uncouple itself, and thus might be the means of saving both life and property. Mr. Adams deserves credit for the invention, and we think it is worthy the serious consideration of railroad companies everywhere.

TEMPERANCE.—The following circular has been issued by the Pennsylvania Temperance Union:

The friends of temperance, believing that the temperance reform is a legitimate branch of Christian effort, and that the welfare of the people and the prosperity of the church are intimately associated with its success, have organized the Pennsylvania State Temperance Union to carry on the temperance work from a religious basis.

The Union employs ministers and Christian laymen as its agents, and relies upon the Christian public for moral and pecuniary support. The pulpit and Sunday-school are its chosen fields for reaching and educating the people in temperance truth; and, by combining the moral influence of the church, Sunday-school and temperance society, is endeavoring to meet and overcome the evils which constantly flow from the trafic in intoxicating liquors. Through its agency more than four hundred sermons and addresses were delivered in 1868.

The demand for competent laborers, and the good results which have followed this plan of action, justify the society in calling for means to meet the increasing demands. The board of managers have, therefore, determined to request the ministers of churches, so far as it may be possible, to preach on the subject of temperance, and ask from their people a contribution for this cause. They have designated Sunday, May 30th 1869, as a suitable day for such services.

At the late annual session, held in Harrisburg, it was Resolved, That the sum of five thousand dollars is greatly needed, and that the managers of the State Temperance Union be authorized to secure a guarantee fund of five thousand dollars, to be raised by pledges for such sums as persons, churches and societies may feel inclined to contribute, said subscriptions to be considered annual for five successive years. The fund so raised to be expended exclusively in support of ministerial labor for temperance.

In connection with the above, the managers of the Union make the following statement:

The Board of the Union is impressed with the belief that ministers of the Gospel, from their education, piety, character and habits of thought, are better able to teach and impress temperance truths upon a larger number of minds, through the pulpit, Sabbath-school, as well as ordinary services, than any other class of men. This fund is designed to supplement, rather than to be the main reliance for support of such labor, either occasional or regular.

The contribution you may make will not be called for until the sum of $1,000 is subscribed. We trust the sorrow inflicted upon our fellow citizens, including the innocent as well as the guilty—the crowded state of our prisons, almshouses, asylums for the insane, deaf, dumb and blind—the grievous taxation—the loss to productive industry and trade—the falling away from the church which annually occurs of those for whom Christ died—directly caused by the use of intoxicating liquors, will lead you to give a liberal contribution to the Union, which has been formed, and is laboring successfully for the correction of these evils.

All contributions may be sent to Wm Nicholson, Resident Secretary, No. 115, South Seventh street, Phil'a.

GRAHAM & SON.—With pleasure we invite the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Graham & Son. They have just received a large supply of spring and summer stock that is not excelled in Central Pennsylvania. They keep none but the best of boots, shoes, gaiters, &c. They deal honestly and fairly with all, as hundreds of our citizens will testify, and any person dealing with Graham & Son once, is sure to call again. This is the best recommendation a business man can have, except the other great truth, that he advertises in the REPUBLICAN.

TOBACCO STORE.—In the beautiful new brick building recently erected by J. B. Butts, Esq., Levi A. Miller & Co. have opened a new wholesale and retail tobacco store. Their advertisement will be found in another column of the REPUBLICAN. Tobacco of all brands, both for chewing and smoking; cigars, the very best, and meersham pipes of all sizes and prices. In addition to this, they have an extensive supply of gentlemen's furnishing goods, and in connection with all this, they have opened an eating house on the European principle. In this department, meals will be served at all hours. The very best the market will afford, will always be furnished. We understand that it will be conducted on strictly temperance principles. Messrs. L. A. Miller & Co., we have no doubt, will realize their most sanguine expectations in this enterprise. They deserve success.

MILESBURG PLANING MILLS.—In another column of the REPUBLICAN will be seen the advertisement of the Milesburg Planing Mill—Mackey & Co. The names of the gentlemen composing this company are M. H. Mackey, Samuel Adams, Wm C. Wilkey and P. H. Haupt. They are all good men, and practical mechanics. Samuel Adams has the reputation of being one of the very best mechanics in this country, and has been engaged as foreman, or Superintendent of the Bellefonte Planing Mills from their commencement, down to the time that he entered into the arrangement to become a member of the firm of Mackey & Co.

We are personally acquainted with each of the members of this firm, and have no hesitancy in recommending them to the public. They will do just what they promise to do. They will turn out none but the best of work. Their prices will be as reasonable as the times will afford. Persons wishing to build new houses, or repair old ones, should call at the Milesburg Planing Mill before purchasing elsewhere.

LOCAL NEWS.—We have frequently urged upon our readers the importance of reporting the local news of their respective neighborhoods; but so far, with little success. We now commend the following article, which we clip from the Harrisburg Telegraph, to their consideration:

"It is the wish of all editors to give in their columns as much of the local events of their town or county as they possibly can. No matter how trivial an event may appear when it occurred, it becomes news when it is put in print, and reaches, through the news columns of a daily or weekly paper, a distant reader. Newspapers are printed to give people just such information as these trivial events furnish. In so doing, they serve to refute many false reports which gain currency. It is true that sometimes by carelessness, sometimes by willfulness—errors do get into print. But when a responsible person sends to a judicious editor news, it is generally reliable. And there are hundreds of persons in the vicinity, and in other counties, and distant States, who take a paper solely for its details of home affairs. They long for its coming—scan its columns eagerly—grumble and complain bitterly if it does not have the local news they had a right to expect, and yet not once in twenty years do they ever send the printer a single fact to aid him in filling his sheet. Housed up in the winter, at work, or some way busy every day the year round, it is not very handy to get hold of current events in this way. But for the lack of persons to send in the facts, important events transpire, well enough known in a limited circle, but which those outside remain in ignorance of, often to their disappointment. You hear that a friend, living some distance away, has deceased. You have business, or social, or personal reasons for desiring to know the truth of the report of the death, to shape affairs accordingly. The newspaper comes—it has the death of several persons, but not of that one. You hope it was a mistake—the wrong name, the wrong place, or something else. You hear the report from another source. Troubled about it, you write a letter, or make a journey, and learn, to your surprise and regret, and damage, perhaps, that it is too true. A letter to the editor, costing three cents, would have apprised you and all others of the fact, a week afterwards, saving much trouble to various persons. It is obvious that editors cannot station a man in every neighborhood to send in news, nor (with all their wisdom) can they guess: deaths, marriages, or accidents (or the weight of new born calves) all over the circle of the patronage. Persons in the vicinity must take pains, promptly, to send to the editor the plain facts, which can be shaped into proper form in the office. "Everybody's business is nobody's." The clergyman officiating at a funeral, the undertaker, or some of the family, should have enough respect to the dead to announce their decease—not only because the fact is of mournful interest, but so that people generally can extend proper sympathy to the survivors, and regulate private or public matters that may require attention. If the administrator of a marriage ceremony does not finish his work by a proper publication, and the groom is not proud enough of his bride to do it, she should be spunky enough, and have enough self respect, to do it herself, if it takes her wedding ring and all his watch-guards. And so of all the variety of matters of which the public have a right to be informed, and which really interest them—some one (generally those most concerned) must forward the facts before they can get into type. If our country friends—some one or two in each township—would lay those suggestions up in their "tablets of memory," and drop us a line weekly from their respective neighborhoods, detailing all the gossip and facts they hear, we would be able to give them the best local paper in the county. It is not necessary for them to write elaborately, or put in shape for publication. Give us the facts, and we can prepare them for the press.

DRUG STORE.—Our readers have already been informed that F. P. Green has removed his drug store from the old stand in the Brokerhoff block, to a room in the Bush House, near the depot.—Frank has a splendid room. We shall not attempt to describe it, but merely say that it is beautiful in the extreme. We wish him success in his new location.

TEMPERANCE UNION.—A meeting of the Temperance Union was held in the Court House, on Monday evening last. The house was called to order by Maj. Armor, after which Rev. McGann delivered a most excellent lecture, or rather sermon, on the subject of temperance. His subject was "the duty of christians in this great work." He was followed by Prof. Hughes, who dealt heavy blows upon the practice of selling drugged liquors, and argued that any man engaged in selling liquor, who had violated the license law of the State, had betrayed his trust—abused the confidence of the people—and was, therefore, unworthy of being trusted again with a license.

The audience was very respectable, indeed; but not so large as it should have been. This organization is not political in its character. Its only object being to restrain the unlawful vending of alcoholic drinks—selling to minors, men of intemperate habits, and on the Sabbath day—and to gather into its folds all the young men, and moderate drinkers of the town. It is a well-known fact that men never become drunkards at once, nor in a day.

The army of drunkards is filled up from the rank and file of moderate drinkers. This the friends of temperance fully understand, and therefore they band together, and put forth the most indefatigable efforts to save the young, and to prevail upon the moderate drinker to abandon the use of alcoholic drinks, and take a decided stand in favor of total abstinance, for God and the Right.

FREE EXHIBITION.—Something new under the sun.—The magical workings of the greatest wonder of the age—the American Combination Button Hole Overseaming and Sewing Machine are now daily witnessed, by numerous spectators, at the store of Zimmerman, Bro's & Co. The mechanism of this machine is perfect, and simple; is easily managed, and not liable to get out of order. Does stitching, hemming, felling, tucking, cording, braiding, quilting, gathering and sewing on, overseaming, embroidering on the edge, makes button and eye let holes in the most perfect and substantial manner.

It should be in every family. Don't forget to call and see it. No charge for witnessing its operations. Instructions to purchasers of machine given free of charge. ZIMMERMAN, Bro's & Co: Agents,

SEED POTATOES.—It is a well known fact that for a few years past, the potatoe crop in this county has been insufficient to supply the demand for home Consumption, and that farmers should employ some means by which the yield of this most important article of food may be increased. The high prices of the potatoes alone should be an incentive to the above. It is also an established fact, that a change of soil and climate is beneficial to that of potatoes. In view of the above fact, farmers, and others, wishing potatoes for seed, should, without delay procure some of those from New York, State, for sale by ZIMMERMAN, BRO'S & CO.,

Also agents for the American Button hole, overseaming and Sewing Machine. Bush's Arcade, Bellefonte, Pa.,

Special Notices.

THE CALORIFIC.—A few weeks since, we presented our readers a few of the superior and highly scientific advantages of the Calorific Cooking Stove; but there are other advantages peculiar to this Stove, to which we will now call your attention. One great advantage which this Stove possesses over all other stoves, is, that by means of its patent heating arrangement it consumes bituminous coal as readily as anthracite. This is truly a great advantage in this county. In short, the operation of this Stove, which is as beautiful as it is efficient, leaves nothing to be desired. We would also state that these Stoves can be readily supplied with a Patent Copper Back Boiler, by which all the hot water required in a family can be heated by the wasted heat from the stove. To persons residing in the country, this Stove comes as a special blessing, as it affords them all the advantages of a Cooking range, with none of the annoyances. A water back can be easily attached to it, at a trifling cost, which will heat water equal to a cooking range, without the inconvenience or expense of having a range built in the fire-place. We would advise all persons who think of purchasing stoves, to call at the ware rooms of ISAAC HAUPT, in Bellefonte, or at the Dry Goods Store of HAUPT & CO., Milesburg, Pa. Remember the Calorific cannot be beaten. †

From the Country Gentleman.

WATER FOR STOCK IN BARNYARDS.—Editors Country Gentleman:—One of the sights that sometimes meets our eyes, as we pass along by farm houses and barns in winter, is the stock scattered over the medows and fields in the neighborhood of the barnyard; they are turned out to drink from some brook or spring that happens to be in some field more or less distant, because their owners has no way provided for watering them in the yards. Now I contend that the place for cattle in winter is the barnyard and not outside of it; they are better off there and their owner is better off to have them there.

There is so much to be gained by having water always at hand where stock can drink as often as they like, without any trouble to their owner except a few minutes labor daily in pumping a tub or trough full of water, and so much to be lost when they have to be turned out or driven to drink, that any one who has once had his yards supplied with water would hardly be induced to be without it again. It looks slack and shiftless to have cattle watering about, treading up the sod when the ground is not frozen, and leaving their droppings often where they do no good—even if left on the medow the good done is small compared with what would be accomplished if they were mixed with other materials in the barnyard, and suitably applied.

I know from my own experience that it is much easier to take care of stock when they have water in the yard, and also that their wants are much better supplied than they otherwise would be. There are three ways of obtaining water for the use of stock, some one of which can be used in every locality,—cisterns, wells and pipes from some stream or spring on a higher level. I would advise every person to provide a supply of water for his stock from some source, for the time and money lost by being without would soon pay for the expense of obtaining it. I know of a barnyard where stock has been kept probably for a century, and every day in winter they have had to be turned out to drink and be brought back. Let any one reckon the cost, and the result will surprise them.

It is the many little things that need attending to that take up our time; let us dispense with as many of them as possible.

DEEP OR SHALLOW PLOUGHING.—Mr. David Newport, of Abington, Pa., writes us: "In the past year I have queried of our most successful farmers on the subject of deep and shallow ploughing, and find a remarkable unanimity of opinion among them, that the best crops of corn can be obtained by ploughing at the depth of about four inches. Many are of the opinion that this is deep enough for any crop, and one of them (Mr. Ivins), who raises the best crops of corn, on the average, that I know of, insists that after the soil has been broken up to the depth of eight or ten inches, many years must elapse before a good crop of corn can be grown, and then only by the application of expensive manures. On one occasion to the great distress of my teams, I broke up a twenty-acre field for corn to the depth of seven inches; a season of extreme drought followed, and the result was a very small yield. My theory is that the deep, flat furrow turns under, beyond the reach of the surface roots, the food adapted by nature for their sustenance—that the deep roots are merely supporting, while those that run near the surface of the ground feed and nourish the plant."

SALT FOR THE SOIL.—A member of the Herkimer County Farmers' Club states that last spring he ploughed an old sod, in which there was an immense number of grubs. He sowed upon three and three quarters acres, soon after ploughing, two bushels of course salt. This was desolved by rain, which came a day or two later. The ground was then thoroughly harrowed and planted to corn, about half a pint of leached ashes being placed with each hill. The yield was very large, and there was not the slightest injury by worms. He has no doubt that the crop would have been quite destroyed had there been no application of salt.

A CORRESPONDENT of a German agricultural paper, who has been traveling through Turkey and Greece, says that the Greeks have not the smallest inclination for agricultural pursuits; all they think of is commerce and speculation. The government, too, leaves the country without the necessary means of communication, and the destruction of forests is carried on to such an extent that the want of water is every year greater, and cultivation becomes more and more difficult.

OF the two thousand and more varities of pears, described and known to those who make pomology a study, only about seventy or eighty are counted as truly valuable and profitable to grow, when season, size, productiveness, and hardihood of the tree are all taken into account.

EGGS are preserved on a large scale in Paris by placing in wire baskets, about a dozen at a time, and immersing them for about a minute in boiling water. A thin layer of the egg coagulates on the inner surface of the shell, forming a film impermeable to air.

A GARDEN HINT OR TWO.—The out-door grape-vines should now be tied up to the trellis; the raspberry and blackberry canes should be staked and tied, but not too closely to the stake, as it prevents free room for natural growth. Asparagus beds should have the coarser portion of the manure raked off, the rest forked in, and in about ten days the beds should receive a good dressing of salt, as we have already mentioned. The rhubarb beds should be put in order, and new beds planted if needed. The currant bushes should have all the dead and unproductive wood removed. Currants make the best bushes if planted from the cuttings. Take last year's wood, from ten to twelve inches long, and if you desire a bush plant it as it is cut, and insert it in the ground where you wish it to stand some five or six inches, and press the soil with the foot firmly around it, and you will have currants the second year. If you would prefer a pretty little tree, cut out the eyes from the wood that goes from beneath the surface. The bush is the most productive.

Gather up from every quarter all the rubish about the garden, put it in heaps on different beds, burn and scatter the ashes.

Lose no time now in planting out your fruit trees, vines, and fruit-bearing canes. The sooner it is done the better, and the more time you will have for other things not so pressing now. Evergreen trees can be delayed until the end of April or to the middle of May if necessary.

Pruning the flower-vines, shrubbery and rose-bushes should be done without delay, if not already done.

Peas should be in the ground as soon as possible. Ours were planted several days ago—that is the first and second crops, the Extra Early and Early Frame, with some "Advancers."

An early start in the garden has a good effect the whole season.—Germantown Telegraph.

PREPARATION OF WHITEWASH.—Whitewash is one of the most valuable articles in the world, when properly applied. It not only prevents the decay of wood, but conduces greatly to the healthfulness of all buildings, whether of wood or stone. Out-buildings and fences when not painted, should be supplied with a coat of whitewash once or twice a year, which should be prepared in the following way. Take a clean water-tight barrel, or suitable cask, and put into it half a bushel of lime. Slack it by pouring water over it boiling hot, and in sufficient quantity to cover it five inches deep, and stir it briskly till thoroughly slacked.—When the slacking has been thoroughly effected, dissolve it in water, and add two pounds of sulphate of zinc and one of common salt; these will cause the wash to harden, and prevent its cracking, which gives an unseemly appearance to the work. If desirable, a beautiful cream color can be added to the above wash by adding three pounds of yellow ochre; or a good pearl or lead color, by the addition of lamp. vine or ivory black.

For fawn color, add four pounds of umber, Turkish or American, the latter is the cheapest, one pound of Indian red, one pound of common lampblack. For common stone color, add four pounds of raw umber, and two pounds of lampblack. This wash may be applied with a common whitewash brush, and will be found much superior both in appearance and durability to the common whitewash.—Journal of Chemistry.

THE POOR FARMER.—His hens roost in trees during the storms in the winter, and he complains that they lay no eggs; his cows shiver by the side of the fence, and he complains that the children eat too much butter; he goes to the grocery with a jug in one end of the sack and a stone in the other; he wipes his nose with his coat sleeve; he thinks those farmers who take agricultural papers, and who read works on farming, are stuck up farmers; he is down on all book learning; he never has a paper in his house that is of value, those that are found there belong to the trashy school; in the spring his sheep flock is seen in pelts hanging on the fence. Reader, have you any farmers of this character in your vicinity? If so, try and buy them out, and send them away; they are a drawback and a disgrace to the neighborhood.

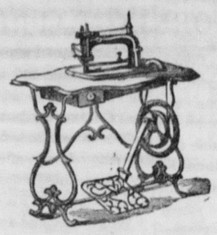
TO DESTROY LICE ON CATTLE.—I have tried many remedies, yet I have found none which effects a cure so quickly and thoroughly as to make a strong suds of soft soap and rain water, adding a handful or so of common salt, which forms a thick, paste-like substance. Apply this by rubbing thoroughly over the animal. If using it upon colts, blanket them well to prevent their catching cold. I have known one application to entirely obliterate all traces of these pests, leaving the skin in a natural and healthy state.

BRITTLE HOOFS.—A correspondent of the Rural World advises the application of pine—not coal—tar to a brittle hoof, asserting that he has frequently applied it to hard, dry and cracked hoofs with good success. It appears to penetrate and soften the hoof, gives it a bright and clean look, and also closes the cracks. Would apply once or twice a month.

A WAR of extermination is being waged against the crows in the pine hills near Winchester, Va. One party killed three hundred and fifty the other night, and it wasn't a good night for crows either. The State pays three cents a pair for feet.

AMERICAN BUTTON-HOLE OVER-SEAMING AND SEWING MACHINE COMBINED.

MEDAL AWARDED AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION, 1867.



In directing attention to the celebrated COMBINATION BUTTON HOLE AND SEWING MACHINE, we feel fully warranted in claiming for it unquestionable superiority over all others as a Family Machine.—The Simplicity, Ease and Certainty with which it operates, as well as the uniform excellence of its work, certainly place it far in advance of any other similar invention of the age.

It is also the cheapest, intrinsically, as well as the best, since it is really two machines combined in one, (by a simple and beautiful mechanical arrangement never before accomplished by human ingenuity,) making either the Lock Stitch or Button Hole Stitch, as occasion may require. It is, at the same time, simple in construction, comparatively noiseless, easily understood, and, in a word, it combines with those advantages exclusively its own the most desirable qualities of all others, for it not only does every variety of sewing in a SUPERIOR MANNER, but in addition OVERSEAMS splendidly and makes beautiful BUTTON and EYELET HOLES in all fabrics. This is far beyond the capacity of any other machine.

The SPLENDID MECHANISM of this Machine, and the superior skill workmanship and materials employed in its construction, are a guarantee of accuracy, strength and durability, and enable the company and its agents to Warrant Every Machine they sell to give entire satisfaction.

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN ON THE MACHINE GRATUITOUSLY.

Lessons may be taken if desired with a view to test the Machine, or to become better acquainted with it before deciding to purchase. Samples of work will be furnished upon application at
